

Registered E-Mail (REM) Information Gathering Questionnaire

V1.0001: 8 Jan 07

Introduction

The European Telecommunications Standards Institute (ETSI) technical committee of Electronic Signatures and Infrastructures has set up a study into requirements for registered e-mail leading to standardisation in this area. ETSI is an independent, non-profit organization, whose mission is to produce electronic communications standards for today and for the future.

Business and administrative relationships among companies, public administrations and private citizens, are now more and more implemented electronically. Trust is becoming essential for their success and continued development of electronic services. It is therefore important that any entity using electronic services have suitable security controls and mechanisms in place to protect their transactions and to ensure trust and confidence with their partners. In this respect the electronic signature is an important security component that can be used to protect information and provide trust in electronic business.

Electronic mail is one of the major tools for electronic business and administration. It has been recognised that additional security services are necessary for e-mail to be trusted. In some European Union Member States (Italy, Belgium, Germany, etc.) regulation(s) and application(s) are in place on e-mails (including Internet mail & web mail) providing origin authentication and proof of delivery. Such security services may be used to provide trusted delivery of e-mail equivalent to the existing physical registered postal service. Several approaches are possible in order to realize the goal of trusted "Registered E-Mail" services. This may be enhanced, for example, by other facilities such as the "Digital Postmark" (as specified by the Universal Postal Union) to provide further electronic evidence about the handling of messages. In order to ensure the interoperability of the trusted email services, it is necessary to specify technical formats, as well as procedures and practices for handling registered e-mail and the ways the electronic signatures are applied to it.

ETSI will first verify among the European Union Member States competent bodies (state authorities, standardisation bodies, e-mail providers, local experts, etc.), as well as with other independent organisations and non EUMS bodies, which current and prospective implementations exist of registered e-mail mechanisms. A Technical Report will be produced to summarize the results of this survey.

Based on this survey outcome, a number of Technical Specifications (TSs) will be produced. These are currently envisaged as follows:

- A TS defining format of the signatures to be applied on registered emails;
- A TS defining the policies of Trusted Service Providers (TSP) applying signatures on registered emails.

Questionnaire

We would welcome your responses to the following questions in the context of Registered E-Mail. The responses will be used as the basis for the development of the ETSI specifications and so will be very valuable in ensuring that our work matches existing and likely future market requirements, encompassing existing solutions and future trends.

You may skip over any sections which you feel are not relevant or for which you do not have a specific answer. Also, instead of answering the questions in section 5 respondents may provide their own system description providing information on the system architecture and how the registered e-mail services identified are provided.

If you can answer these questions from two or more perspectives (for example: the requirements of the regulations, the provisions of one or more specific current or future implementation of those regulations) feel free to answer more copies of the questionnaire, again skipping over irrelevant sections.

Unless specified otherwise please tick all check boxes that apply. Please use continuation tables at the end of this form should the space provided be insufficient for giving a full response to any of the questions

5. Service Provision Model

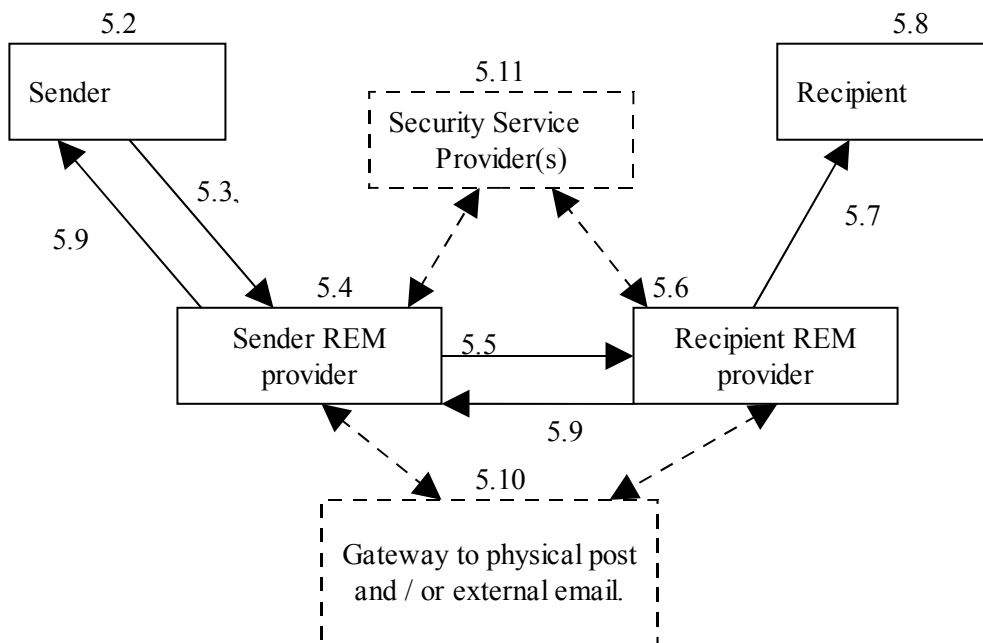

Note: If you prefer, you can provide us (ETSI STF 318) with your own documentation giving detailed information on how the services are provided, and then we can work with you on how to relate this to the questions in this section.

The aim of the following questions is to solicit information about the high level model of the Registered E-Mail system and how the evidential services identified above are provided.

If a system description already exists, or if it would be easier to use your own terms, please provide a description of the high level architecture and how the services listed above are provided in a separate document or in the continuation tables at the end of this questionnaire.

If you have provided your own description of the service provision model please check this box and, where not included in the continuation tables, give the reference & title of the documentation provided:

The questions in this section are based upon the following model:

Notes

- 1 External e-mail means e-mail services which do not provide Registered E-Mail services directly to the sender or the recipient. This may be either conventional e-mail, or conventional physical postal services (registered or otherwise).
2. Sender and recipient includes associated software and hardware on sender's / recipients system.

Continuous (i.e. not dashed) lines identify elements of what is henceforth referred to as "basic model".

The numbers appearing in the figure above identify subsections of the present section. Each subsection contains questions on specific elements of the model. Subsection 5.1 contains questions regarding the model as a whole.
